Jason

That's great. I'm sorry to rush you but Michael is going to be there tomorrow. If you can't get the PO to us this afternoon can you please say the price is "approved" in this email and then we can proceed in the meantime?
Thanks,

Jason

Are you able to provide a PO/signed proposal ASAP?

I have a last minute opening and could have a technician there this week.

Comfort. Under control.

Jason

Thanks I got it that time

Quickly looking here are some of my thoughts:

- OA is around 20% ratio for all RTU's. It's on the upper limit of what I'd consider OK but typically isn't an issue in Michigan.
- Does this TAB report include all fans in the building or just some of them? I'm calculating that the building is +1187 CFM based on their readings which is really positive. There is a potential to reduce the outside air on the RTU's quite a bit and get net airflow lower.
- Do the RTU's have power exhaust? I would make sure that if they do the fans are not running constantly
- Are the outside air dampers cracked open and not fully shut or fully closed?
- If you crack open a door is there air rushing into or out of the building?

Will

Scott Moline asked me to reach out and see if you could offer any insight into this report. The location is having a major moisture issue throughout the facility and we may need to pull you in to assess the situation and help point things in the right direction.

Please let me know what other details you may need and feel free to call me to review any time.

Thanks,
