Valerie

For timing the weather is going to be windy and temperatures in the teens on Monday. With this primarily being roof work we are planning to go by for a half day to start by checking things that would be heavy hitters. They'll be there at 8am. We may be able to resolve or diagnose in that amount of time but if not we would return later that week to finish testing.

We're approaching this more like a service/troubleshooting call so I think it makes most sense to do a not to exceed work order. Price would be $7045 if we have to complete the full scope which would be, OA only on the RTU's and all exhaust fans. But if we can complete without doing all that then we can invoice less.

Let me know if you have any questions and if this is approved
Thank you,

Hey Will,

Any update on this one? I just want to make sure that we are still set for Monday and if so, what time? Can you also pass me your guy's name and contact number? I'm going to have one of our techs out there that way if there's any issues found we can get them corrected ASAP and hopefully same day so that your T&B goes as smoothly as possible. I'll send you contact information for our guy as well.

Please let me know so I can issue you the WO#/PO#.

Thanks!

Hi Will,

I really need help with getting a T&B done for the Service building at this CarMax location (18800 S. Oak Park Avenue, Tinley Park, IL). They are having major positive pressure issues as you can see in the attached. According to our mechanical guys, the equipment is all operating properly and according to the engineer this building is designed to be at a positive but the roof should not be a balloon. We need to get to the bottom of this sooner than later though. I can have mechanical guys onsite too so that if there are issues we can address them in real time.

Can you please take a look and let me know how quickly you would be able to help us out? I know these usually take a few weeks to schedule, but am hoping under the extreme circumstances that we can get to this one much quicker.

Let me know!
